Turn community insight into organizational strategy

Today's Community Health Needs Assessment should do far more than satisfy a federal requirement. inHealth helps not-for-profit hospitals transform the CHNA process into an enterprise-wide strategic planning tool that aligns leadership, informs investment decisions, supports health equity initiatives, and creates a measurable roadmap for community impact.

The challenge

Most organizations treat the CHNA as a compliance exercise.

But healthcare is changing.

Federal expectations continue to evolve, health equity has become a strategic priority, and boards increasingly expect measurable outcomes, not simply completed reports.

Organizations that approach the CHNA as a regulatory obligation risk:

- Missed strategic opportunities
- Weaker community partnerships
- Limited board engagement
- Compliance vulnerability
- Fragmented implementation efforts

A modern CHNA should become the foundation for long-term community health strategy.

Our solution

A Complete Assessment-to-Action Model

CHNA Report
Develop a comprehensive assessment using quantitative data, community input, stakeholder interviews, focus groups, prioritization workshops, and board-ready reporting.

Implementation Strategy
Translate findings into practical three-year action plans with measurable goals, ownership, partnerships, and governance.

Evaluation & Compliance
Track progress through dashboards, Schedule H documentation, compliance reporting, and ongoing performance measurement.

Recognized as a Joint Commission Best Practice

During its 2026 survey of MultiCare Health System, Joint Commission surveyors recognized the board engagement built into the inHealth CHNA/CHIP process as a best practice.

Why organizations choose inHealth

Strategic Partnership

From project planning through board adoption, we provide end-to-end guidance across every phase of the assessment.

Actionable Intelligence

We combine quantitative data with community insight to identify meaningful priorities that support informed decision-making.

Board & Regulatory Readiness

We prepare leadership with adoption materials, presentations, documentation, and compliance support.

From Assessment to Impact

Our work doesn't end with the report. We connect findings to implementation strategies, community engagement, population health initiatives, and measurable outcomes.
